The Security Council,

Reaffirming all its previous resolutions on the situation in Rwanda, in particular its resolution 918 (1994) of 17 May 1994 which expanded the mandate of the United Nations Assistance Mission for Rwanda (UNAMIR) and authorized an expansion in UNAMIR's force level,

Having considered the report of the Secretary-General dated 31 May 1994 (S/1994/640),

Bearing in mind the statement made by the President of the Council on 3 May 1994 (S/PRST/1994/22),

Reaffirming its resolution 868 (1993) of 29 September 1993 on the security of United Nations operations,

Noting with concern that, to date, the parties have not ceased hostilities, agreed to a cease-fire, or brought an end to the violence and carnage affecting civilians,

Noting with the gravest concern the reports that genocide^{act of may have} occurred in Rwanda and recalling in this context that genocide constitutes a crime punishable under international law,

Reiterating its strong condemnation of the ongoing violence in Rwanda and, in particular, the systematic killing of thousands of civilians,

Expressing its outrage that the perpetrators of these killings have been able to operate and continue operating within Rwanda with impunity,

Noting that UNAMIR is not to have the role of a buffer force between two parties,

[Noting also that UNAMIR will continue only as long as required for it to carry out the tasks for which it was established.]^{it is used to contribute to the security of displaced persons + protection of refugees + civilians at risk in Rwanda}

Underlining that the internal displacement of some 1.5 million Rwandans facing starvation and disease and the massive exodus of refugees to neighbouring countries constitute a humanitarian crisis of enormous proportions,

Reiterating the importance of the Arusha Peace Agreement as the basis for the peaceful resolution of the conflict in Rwanda,

Commending the countries which have provided humanitarian assistance to Rwandan refugees, as well as emergency aid to alleviate the sufferings of the Rwandan people, and those countries which have contributed troops and logistical support to UNAMIR, and reiterating the urgent need for coordinated international action in this respect, including the safety, security of civilians who have sought refuge under UNAMIR protection

Operative 7 bis (also new): Decides to keep the situation in Rwanda under constant review and states its readiness to consider promptly any recommendations which the Secretary General may make concerning the force level and mandate of UNAMIR in the light of developments, including, if appropriate, the restoration of UNAMIR to its previously authorized strength.

New last preambular paragraph (the final preambular para):

-- Recognizing the Secretary General's authority to take all steps necessary including withdrawal, to ensure the safety and security of UNAMIR personnel.

N.B.: paras 15 -18 specify that the force level will be 270.

The reason USUN did not put the number "270" in was because we want to give the SYG the flexibility that he needs, because we know that he cannot get down to 270 overnight.

General Baril briefed the Security Council on the plan for the drawdown. He asked for a certain amount of flexibility.
